MORRIS HENRY BITTINGER

D

To Mr. Morris Henry Bittinger . . .

To a man who is always ready to lend a helping hand, who performs unheralded his vital duties to the students and to the administration of his alma mater; we dedicate this The Nineteen Forty-eight Kaleidoscope to Mr. Morris Henry Bittinger, who has given to us his undying support and loyalty as a professor, coach, Christian gentleman, and friend.

A Message From the President

The closing of a session is marked by mingled emotions. There is the prospect of a vacation from the arduous duties of teaching and being taught; the plans for the summer; the thoughts of home and friends. For those whose education is not yet completed the last day means mainly joy.

The group most interested at the end of the year are those who graduate. For them it is the end of at least a chapter in their education—the day for which they have looked forward for four long years. It should be and is one of the big days of their lives.

But the day of graduation is not entirely one of happiness. Though the race has been completed, the victory won and the congratulations of family and friends received, there is a haunting note of sadness. Leaving the familiar scenes, the students and all that goes to make up college life is not without its pang. The most carefree days of life are gone. Responsibility at last becomes a reality.

The call for good men was never clearer. The need for educated men reinforced by the Christian tradition never more urgent. We are still living in a grand and awful time. Whether you go into your careers immediately or on to graduate work, your years at Hampden-Sydney have equipped you to make a just contribution to the needs of your day. Give it with all that you have.

Hampden-Sydney is not through with you. She will follow you all the days of your life with interest and affection. She will welcome your return whenever the opportunity presents itself.

Goodbye and best wishes.

HAMPDEN-SYDNEY COLLEGE

Senior Class History

As the small group of men that compose the senior class of 1948 mount upon the chapel rostrum to receive their degrees they will perhaps feel like a group of swimmers who have immersed unbeaten by the troubled waters of war, draft boards and uncertainty. Since many of the members of this class had their college work interrupted through the exigencies of war, they compose a most heterogeneous group. Because few of the seniors were in the same freshman class, their ages range from 29 to 20, the average age being 23. But whatever their differences the 1948 Tigers are Hampden-Sydney men to the core and are confident that though small the senior class still composes the backbone of the school. (If you don't believe this, ask any of its members.)

If one would cast his eyes back upon the college years of this class there is to recall the frequent dormitory bull sessions, the dances, and sports, the long nights of study, and the tough examinations. Also the 1948 Tigers remember when many years ago they first came to Hampden-Sydney as green freshmen. They were soon to obtain that "Hampden-Sydney feeling" as administered by the sophomores with oaken paddles. Soon they learned to sound off in a manner befitting Tarzan's "call of the wild." Perhaps a few remember the good old pre-war days when everybody rode a bicycle (Mr. McRae now being the last rose of summer) and look back longingly on the days when there were plenty of cuts and an abundance of school spirit. However, most of the 1948 Bengals like to forget the many different hours spent in the hard job of learning how to concentrate, and the draft quotas draining the civilian student body of Hampden-Sydney to a handful.

Then as the last reverberations from the guns of World War II died away, the Tigers returned to their old Alma Mater to find that it had changed as little as Dr. Massey's black hat, excepting for the fact that there were panes in all the windows and less school ratting, everything was the same. There was the same mud, and the same squirrels, as well as the identical faculty (with the addition of a gay young group of bachelors) while the football team lost most of its games with their former monotonous regularity. However, encouraged by two successful basketball seasons, a few enjoyable dances and S.T.C., they pressed on under the goods of their professors to pass through seniordom and to enter upon the threshold of professional and business life. But every member of the 1948 class will forever bear upon him the story of Hampden-Sydney's Christian influence drawn from the tradition of men who sought honor, truth, and Godliness since 1776.

Junior Class History

Unlike all the rest of the great classes here at Hampden-Sydney, the Juniors lay no claim to being an integral part of the campus, to being indispensable for the present or future welfare of the College, for in fact most of us are either pseudo-juniors, having crawled under the technical wire sometime last year. Knowing ourselves to be hybrid congeries of intelligensia, we concur with everyone else in thinking that all of us could pull out any old time and never be missed. Juniors are undoubtedly the most useless crowd in any school. Either we have another year to risk after this current photofinish in classwork, or in outside activities we must wait another two sets of exams to reach the big chief position which usually goes to the Senior BMOCs. Any way you look at it, we're just hangers on.

With this in mind, we would rather pay due tribute to our magnificent, awe inspiring Seniors who have fought their cutless classes four long years and will shortly beat the administration out of a yard or two of sheephide. Since we are so impotent, we'll hail instead our hand-picked (or picked over) freshmen for their undeniable fortitude in planning still another gestation period here on the Hill. And for the poor sophs, who inherit our dubious position, we gravely and gladly tender our heartfelt sympathy.

Sophomore Class History

From Venable Hall to Cushing the lingering echoes of the "wailing and gnashing of teeth" of the class of '50, as they writhe under the final torments of their "Rat-dom", resound with a melancholy tone, only to be enveloped by the harsh shouts of voices which can be identified with this same class giving orders to hapless Freshmen to "sound off". Yes, the tormented are now tormentors. We, the Class of '50, have taken that step so important in the life of every college student, across that great divide which separates a Freshman from the sage upperclassmen

We entered Hampden-Sydney with the distinction of being the largest Freshman class in its history, numbering two hundred and forty. Upon returning this fall our ranks had been thinned to a hundred and sixty-five. But even this figure represents well over one-third of the total number of the student body. From this can be seen the prominence of the position occupied by this class. Never before has a single class wielded such influence in the shaping of events about the campus.

Since the day we set foot on the "Hill" we have been regarded with intense interest by the administration, faculty, and alumni, for upon our shoulders was placed the destiny of the school. If we proved absorptive to the influences which have molded Hampden-Sydney gentlemen for almost a hundred and seventy-five years, the ideals and traditions of the institution would live on. If not, Hampden-Sydney would become just another small college. Nor have we caused them any small amount of bewilderment. Indeed, due to our comparatively immense size, we have thrown the whole school out of balance, and not until years after we leave will it attain any resemblance to pre-war normality.

And now as the year '47-'48 draws to a close, we abandon the rank of Sophomore to our successors and eagerly step into the role of Juniors.

Freshmen Class History

For 160 high school graduates and veterans, a new life began on September 9, 1947. An attentive audience, gathered in McIlwain Hall, was introduced to Hampden-Sydney College by an impressive first night of orientation. Of this assembly, many picked students were being ushered into college life for the first time. These men represented the foundation of the class of '51 and, as a whole, were of unusual aptitude.

For the first several weeks the Freshmen were probably as confused a class as have ever matriculated at "the hill." With long faces, displaying considerable doubt and uneasiness, we heard the various accounts, perhaps exaggerated, of the experience lying ahead. We met roommates and the others with whom we would be associated for four years of college life. We were definitely submissive, quiet, and unconscious of the task set before us. Suddenly, however, from this situation arose one of more complications and excitement. The gray and garnet "Rat" hat, the name tag, and the "Rat" rules took their place in the heart of every Freshman. "Sound off" became a frequently heard expression as Freshmen from every corner of the campus raced through the appropriate identification.

At our first formal meeting the Freshman Class showed good judgment in the election of officers as proved by the selection of Sam Hart, "Puggy" Atkins, and Walter Bridges. Even though faced by a split resulting in the "machine", the meeting was carried out with only occasional breaks in the procedure. After this organization, the Freshmen became a more unified group, actively taking part in pep rallies and "Rat" races. For several months we felt a little held down in Farmville activities and probably a little tormented by unsympathetic Sophomores; however, in reviewing the past, it can hardly be said that undue punishment was inflicted.

Several weeks before Christmas, the night of December 10, the Freshman Class was elevated to the level of Social Sophomore. "Rat" hats and regulations were suddenly abandoned; all Freshmen felt a little more important and walking on the grass became legal.

Although the "gross" Freshmen were perhaps in the majority, many first year men turned their talents to more constructive ends. The football squad was rounded out, the five iron men were supported, and many school organizations were greatly strengthened by a group of Freshmen, who played hard and worked hard, giving conclusive evidence of their later value as full-fledged Sophomores.

The Student Council is the governing body whose job it is to preserve and defend against all transgressors of the Honor Code of our Alma Mater. This body has eight members, two elected to it from each of the four classes of the Student Body.

The most serious business of the Student Council is handled by this group and it is their duty to try, and to prosecute offenders of the Honor Code. Inheriting the outstanding work done by President Bluford and his Council last year, President Rennie found that he had a solid foundation on which to build this year's Council. The efficient and business-like manner in which this year's Council performed its duties ranks it as a worthy successor to the honor and prestige of former Councils.

This body of the Student Government is composed of seventeen members and presided over by the president of the Student Body. The members are elected in the late spring of each year but do not take office until the beginning of the fall term. Two men are elected from each fraternity and three from the independent members of the student body.

This year the Student Assembly, presided over by the president of the student body, went right to work where the Assembly left off last year, under the guidance of President Rennie the Assembly made several improvements and revisions in the Constitution and deleted the Coordinating Committee set up last year.

The Student Government, composed of the Student Assembly and the Student Council, made many gains which, is hoped by those who made them, will prove a benefit to the students and the college. Meetings of these bodies of government were held with a serious purpose and steps were taken with the view that through cooperation of all students much might be gained by all.

With quality of material a requirement, simplicity the keynote, and an added touch of professionalism as the ultimate goal, the forty-second volume of The Garnet has found its way into the hands of the reading public.

To the loyal members of the staff much credit must be given. Without their untiring aid and willingness to deny themselves of sleep in the wee hours preceding each "deadline day," these last four issues could never have become a reality.

The success of The Garnet has entailed co-operation and harmony among its workers. It has been the result of the combined efforts and a consolidation of various individual ideas. It has not been the product of one. Rather, it has been an activity in which each student has had the opportunity to exhibit his own particular talent in the literary field. It has become an integral part of campus life as an instrument of free speech.

It is a periodical published by the students; and it is they who are responsible for its success. The Garnet is the students' own magazine.

In the year 1789, in September, right after school had opened for that year, a group of students banded together to form what is now the second oldest college literary society in the United States. This was interrupted only during the Civil War and the Second World War, other than that the organization has met continuously for the past one hundred and fifty-seven years.

The organization is for the purpose of furthering literary and forensic work among the students of the college. This year the organization led by Grier Woody, its president, has again taken its usual high place in campus activities.

BILL SMITHERS	President

The Jongleurs, the dramatic club of Hampden-Sydney College, is made up of students who are interested in drama—not from a professional standpoint—but because of their interest in "the stage" and the fun they get out of being associated with it.

The club has a point system whereby all the members must do a certain amount of work in order to maintain their membership standing. Perhaps this is one reason why the members of the club, though it is relatively large, are so enthusiastic and interested in the club.

Each fall and spring, the club presents a play in collaboration with the State Teacher's College Dramatic Club. The fall play, "Death Takes A Holiday," was presented before a large and appreciative audience.

The spring play, given on "Founders' Day" at the State Teacher's College, was enjoyed by a large number of students from both colleges and also by the alumnae of the State Teacher's College.

This year, the Glee Club, under the able directorship of Mr. T. E. Crawley, has had a very successful season. It is one of the most popular organizations on the campus, as evidenced by the amount of support and cooperation given to it, not only by the students and members themselves, but also by the faculty and administration.

In the fall, the Glee Club sang the oratorio, "The Holy City," by Gaul at V. P. I. and at Grace Covenant Church in Richmond.

Among the cities visited by the club were: Richmond, Danville, Staunton, Harrisonburg, Blacksburg, Roanoke, Lynchburg, Farmville, Fredricksburg, and Newport News. The nature of these programs was such that mostly religious music was sung in the fall, and mostly secular music in the spring. These tours were made largely to girls schools and alumni chapters.

Last year, the Glee Club initiated the custom of having an Annual Spring Festival of Music, and this year, the club joined by artists from New York continued this custom by the singing of the oratorio, "The Creation," by Joseph Hayden. This was attended by a large crowd, and the festival most successful.

Mid-Winters saw Bob Chester and his big "Name Band" ushering in the week end with an afternoon tea dance followed by a formal dance that night, and an informal affair the next night with the Vagabonds providing the music.

Considerable mention should be made of the Decorations Committee under the able leadership of George Cooper.

Reactivated this year after over four years of inactivity, the Radio Club is making its bid for a permanent place among the campus organizations. Due to a shortage of funds, the organization got off to a rather slow start early in the fall, but by the end of October regular meetings were being held weekly. Equipment loaned to the club by its members enabled classes to be held in Morse code and radio theory. A low powered amateur radio station was also set up, using equipment brought from home by one of the members of the club. This station, using the call letters—W3IEM/4, promptly became affiliated with two networks of other amateur radio stations, the Virginia State network and the Traffic Outlet network. The former network served as a "clearing house" for messages addressed to cities and towns in Virginia, and the latter for messages destined for out of State cities and foreign countries. By the end of the school year, the club station had originated over one hundred free radiograms from the students and had received almost half as many replies and other messages addressed to members of the student body.

With the graduation of Perry Hyde, Rod Bouton, and Bill Lacy, three of last year's team, the debate team was left with few men of any intercollegiate debate experience. Jim Cralle and Walter Woodson were returning members and Claude Pritchard, Dick Harris, and Joe Hazlegrove were selected for the team from last year's intramural debate tournament. In November, following debate tryouts, Bob Ramey was also added to the team. Later in the year the Debate Council sponsored an intramural debate tournament for the purpose of uncovering other capable men for future use.

Departing from the pattern established last year by Perry Hyde of scheduling a large number of debates in the fall, manager Claude Pritchard engaged the team only in debates with Lynchburg College and Randolph-Macon Woman's College before Christmas, and then sent the team into high gear after mid-year exams.

Members of Tau Kappa Alpha, National Honorary Forensic Fraternity, were selected by Dr. Allan from the Debate Team.

Under the leadership of Lewis Lancaster the S.C.A. has grown in its activities and influence. In addition to furnishing and maintaining a reading room in the old gym for the entire Student Body, the S.C.A. has equipped the old gym as a recreation hall. Shuffle-board, badminton, and ping-pong facilities were made available for the use of the students.

Two religious emphasis weeks were sponsored by the S.C.A. with outstanding ministers from Virginia present as speakers. Prayer meeting was held every Wednesday and dormitory prayer meetings during the week, and a radio program was sponsored over station WFLO every Sunday afternoon.

At the beginning of the year the S.C.A. held a reception for the new students, at which time each freshman was given The Hampden-Sydney Key, a handbook to familiarize them with the customs and traditions of Hampden-Sydney.

Sphinx chapter of Sigma Upsilon, national honorary literary fraternity, started the year off with a bang by initiating nine new members. This organization is composed of students who have proven themselves proficient in the field of writing. Sigma Upsilon sponsored two speakers during the year. At the time that this was written, the members were discussing the possibility of holding a national reorganization convention to be held on the hill during the spring.

Eta Sigma Phi, national honorary classical fraternity, is composed of students who have achieved a high average in either Latin or Greek. This year Beta Theta chapter opened up the season by initiating nine additional members. This year also found the national organization back on its feet solidly for the first time since the war and Hampden-Sydney's chapter taking an even greater part in fraternity-wide affairs such as contests, publications, etc., than ever before. A debate was also planned with some members of the S. T. C. classical society on a controversial Latin topic.

Tiger Football—1947

With a none too impressive record of two wins and seven losses staring them in the face from the previous football season, the 1947 version of the Hampden-Sydney Tigers entered the pigskin parade in high hopes of a more successful gridiron venture.

From the moment training camp was set up on the second day of September, that traditional Tiger spirit, which has characterized so many generations in the past, sent an optimistic sentiment through the air that later proved costly to many a sportswriter who selected Hampden-Sydney on his weekly forecast of victorious elevens. With Morgan Tiller, former University of Denver and Pittsburgh Steeler's athlete, at the coaching reins, and Al Buchinsky, Hampden-Sydney alumnus and a football star in his own right, standing by as a capable assistant, the Tigers were assured of outstanding leadership during the '47 campaign. And in addition to 15 returning monogram wearers, Lynn Chewning, much publicized ex-VMI and Navy performer, was slated for a banner year in leading his newly acquired teammates through a full 9-game schedule, which was conspicuously free from such power-houses as Virginia and Washington and Lee.

But hopeful aspirations were soon replaced by grim reality. Attired in shiny new battle preparations, the Tigers took the game field for the first time against Wofford College, under the lights in near-by Farmville. No sooner had Tiller's tricky "T" offense shaken galloping Lynn loose for 49 yards down the left sideline the second time he got his hands on the ball, than the Richmond athlete was knocked out of bounds against a yard marker and sidelined for six weeks with a broken collar bone. Along with Chewning went much of the team's confidence, and the inexperience of the Tiger hopefuls became evident. Wofford, capitalizing on three so-called "breaks", tallied three times to initiate the 1947 schedule with a 19-0 setback.

Next came Guilford, and the Tigers were at home for the second straight week, this time at Death Valley. Except for an early score that occurred on a fluke play, the Tigers outplayed the visiting North Carolina eleven. But the lone touchdown, which was the result of a long sprint by a Guilford back after he appeared trapped behind the line of scrimmage, was enough to hand Hampden-Sydney its second defeat, 6-0.

The first trip of the season was in store for Tiller's Tigers the following week. But after traveling with the blessing of the newspapers to Bristol, where the game with Emory & Henry was staged under arcs, Hampden-Sydney again failed to come out on top. The Wasps, also seeking their first win, scored midway in the third period and then staved off a Hampden-Sydney rally in the last few minutes to emerge victorious, 6-0.

Homecoming was on the menu come October 18, and the potent Davidson Wildcats arrived just in time to warm up the festivities. Although the final outcome showed the visitors ahead, 49-0, the whole picture might have been changed but for another tough "break". With Davidson out in front 6-0 early in the game, the Tigers crossed the goal line for the first time on an aerial from quarterback Buddy Glasscock to end Pete Squire. But a backfield-in-motion penalty nullified the touchdown, and from here on in nothing could stop the mighty Davidson single wing attack.

By this time the Death Valley representatives of the gridiron had been tagged by some as "the Scoreless Wonders". Although the Tigers did nothing to remedy this situation in their game with Richmond the following week, they did show Coach Tiller that what they were lacking in size and experience they made up in fight. No one who saw the game will forget how Hampden-Sydney came back in the last half to fight the larger Spiders blow for blow to a standstill after spotting Coach Fenlon's squad a 20-point advantage in the first half.

With the coming of Western Maryland to Death Valley for the last game in which the Tigers would appear before a home crowd came the good news that both Chew-ning and Doug Chapman would return to the line-up. Chapman, triple-threat fullback, had sat out the first five reverses due to, first, a dislocated heel bone, and then a badly cut lip. But according to the players who rubbed noses with the opposition for 60 rough minutes, the Green Terrors presented the hardest hitting ball club they ran up against all season, and the Tigers went down to the heavy visitors, 26-0.

Not only were the Tigers long overdue for a touchdown at this late stage of the season, but they were also anxious to taste the joy of initial victory. Both these desires were to be fulfilled the next Saturday when Hampden-Sydney journeyed to Chestertown, Md., to meet Washington College. Playing on a water-soaked field, the Tigers gained their first six points of the year as Chenning plunged over the final stripe early in the game after returning a Sho'man Punt some 40-odd yards to set up the marker. Ralph Carson, J. V. halfback, added the extra point from placement, and the Tigers enjoyed a 7 point lead until just before the close of the second quarter when Washington pushed across a score by means of a pass-lateral play. The attempted conversion was no good, and the Tigers still held a slim one-point margin as the teams left the field at intermission.

However, in the second half Hampden-Sydney had to come from behind to pull the game out of the fire. Washington tallied again, but failed to convert, to take a 12-7 lead going into the last period. After several Tiger threats had bogged down in sight of the looming goal posts, Chewning took the ball on the Washington 13 with less than a minute to play, and circled wide around right end to score standing up. Carson aired his trusty toe and split the uprights for a 14-12 victory, the one and only of the year, as it turned out.

The team went to Randolph-Macon primed for an all-out performance. The spoils of victory had been pleasant the week before, and the Tigers wanted the R-M scalp more than any other. But fate would not have it so, for after Hampden-Sydney scored in the first quarter on perhaps the most beautifully executed play all season—a fake hand-off by quarterback Bill Wall, which drew the entire Jacket team to the left side of the field and allowed the Tiger signal-caller to skirt the opposite end and for 25 yards and pay dirt—Randolph-Macon came back a rejuvenated eleven in the last half to score twice for a 13-7 win. The game, although played at Ashland in ankle-deep mud and a drizzling rain, was witnessed by many H-S followers.

The closing contest of the somewhat adverse season was played at Sewanee, Tenn., with the University of the South as host team. With practically the same eleven back that trounced the Tigers in '46, Sewanee had little trouble in repeating, 32-7. Chewning, who ran wild in the loser's cause, scored the final touchdown of the year and Glasscock added the extra point with a placement from the portside.

Although the Tigers took beating after beating throughout the season, two things stand out as unique: First, the team was constantly improving as the season progressed. At the opening of the year, the Tigers were a ragged football team—inexperienced, comparatively small, and lacking in fundamentals. Each game thereafter showed that mistakes were being corrected and finesse was being added, until toward the end of the season the Death Valley boys really began to operate as a polished outfit. Secondly, the team showed a fighting spirit that comes only from a group of boys who play for the pure love of the game. Laurence Leonard, Richmond News Leader Sports Editor, noted the spirit interwoven in the Tiger team when he remarked to Athletic Director Gummy Proctor during one of the Tiger practice sessions, "Football is a lot more fun at Hampden-Sydney than at most schools." Such attitude is to be highly commended in a day and time when athletics at many colleges have become more similar to a business than anything else.

Jay-Vee Football

Following the infamous example of their varsity elders, the Baby Tigers likewise fared none too well on the gridiron during 1947.

After dropping their opening games to Fork Union and Greenbrier by identical scores, 19-6, the JV's took time off from their scrimmage sessions against the varsity to register the two lone victories of their season—the first, at the expense of Glass High's understudies, 26-0; and the second, a 32-0 romp over Manassas under the arcs in Farmville. But the schedule ended in humiliation as the Bees of rival Randolph-Macon stung the Baby Tigers, 26-7, at Ashland; and then a week or so later, added insult to injury with a fancy display at Death Valley that netted them a 45-0 walk-a-way.

In Fork Union and Greenbrier, the Baby Tigers faced probably the two best prep school teams in the state; and the fight they put up before bowing was a credit to the school which they represented. It was late in the second half against Greenbrier before the superiority of reserve strength produced the two touchdown margin that spelled defeat for the junior varsity. Against Glass JV's and Manassas, Coach Henry McCone's boys enjoyed field days with scoring honors being divided among several of the players. The two affairs with Randolph-Macon will be averaged at the earliest possible opportunity—probably 1948!

To Coach McCone is due recognition for the fighting spirit which his team displayed at all times. The varsity as well as the opposition will bear witness to that fact. To the team goes the hope that the seed they sowed in 1947 will reap its full benefits on future Garnet and Gray elevens. Several Baby Tigers have made a start toward that end already. Tackle Hunter Tignor played in several varsity's twenty-eight points by virtue of his placement-trained toe, and several other JV men dressed with the varsity following the completion of the JV schedule.

Resume of the Season

With the departure of Coach Frank Summers to take over the reins at his old alma mater, V.M.I., the basketball fortunes of the Tigers fell into the capable hands of George S. (Gummy) Proctor, Hampden-Sydney's newly acquired athletic director. When Coach Proctor issued the call for basketball candidates in mid-October, he was greeted by five returning lettermen, Captain George Bales, Bill Balas, Amby Vulgan, Wyllys Taylor, and Jack Glascock. In addition, there were a host of other candidates, including several promising members of last year's Junior Varsity squad. Among the newcomers, the boys who seemed destined for the most action were Jimmy Hunt, up from the J.V. squad, and three freshmen, Jack Locke, Harris Livick, and Bob Francis. With this overflow of talent it looked as if last year's problem of reserves might have been solved.

Coach Proctor unveiled his quintet in defense of the State and Little Six crowns, with a 68-34 verdict over a hapless Bridgewater five. Wyllys Taylor was very impressive in his debut as a starter by swishing in 21 points. The following night the Tigers turned in another lopsided victory by dumping Union Theological Seminary to the tune of 66-48. Taylor was again high with 17 markers followed by Balas and Bales with 12 and 11 points respectively. It looked as if the Tigers' victory skein would end here for the next opponent was William and Mary, rated by many as the State's top team. It was obvious from the beginning that Coach Proctor's men were not affected by any pre-game predictions. The contest took place before a screaming throng in the Petersburg High School gymnasium. Overcoming an early lead, the Bengals left the floor with a 20-15 lead at the half. Bill Balas was bearing the blunt of the Tiger attack while Jimmy Hunt was doing an excellent job in handcuffing the Indians' all-State ace, Chet Giermak. It began to look bad for the boys in Red and Gray when, with two minutes to go, the Indians went ahead 36-35 after having whittled away at the Tigers' lead all during the second half. The Braves immediately started freezing the ball, and there were only twenty seconds to play when the ever-alert Amby Vulkan stole the ball. After moving it into position the ball was given to Bill Balas who leaped into the air and pushed in a two-pointer from behind the foul circle, and that was the ball game, the Tigers winning 37-36. In this contest Balas proved his right to all-State honors by dumping in 19 points and playing a stellar floor game.

The first defeat came at the hands of the Duke Blue Devils at Durham. Leaving the floor at intermission with a six-point lead, the Tigers were unable to cope with the superior reserve powers of the Dukes and went down 59-45. Again, outstanding even in defeat, was Bill Balas who led all scorers with 22 points. The Tigers bounced back with two consecutive victories over Lynchburg College and the Medical College of Virginia. The next game was the traditional contest with the University of Richmond which was played before 2,700 fans at the Blues Armory in Richmond. The game was a see-saw battle which saw the Tigers leave the floor at half-time with a 25-21 lead. The Red and Gray held this lead until the end of the third quarter. From that time on the lead changed hands with practically every basket until the Spiders stormed the nets with a few minutes to play and won 49-44. Late in the fourth quarter Hampden-Sydney lost Captain Bales, Balas, and Vulgan via the foul route. Vulgan's overhead shots from mid-court thrilled the crowd time and time again as he looped in 19 points for high scoring honors.

Next the Tiger quintet renewed their rivalry with the Randolph-Macon Yellow Jackets and posted their third straight "Little Six" victory. After capturing an early lead, the Bengals iced the game away in the final quarter and left the court victorious by a 49-38 score.

Roanoke's offensive tactics slowed down the Tigers' pace and the Bengals lost their first "Little Six" contest 38-28. It was obvious from the start that the Tigers were "off" and were not prepared for the Maroons' type of basketball.

The next game might easily have been billed as an exhibition as the Tigers went out of their class to tackle the strong N. C. State team, labeled as the top team in the South. The Southern Conference Champs had little trouble in shellacking the humble Tiger five, 98-36. The Wolfpack exhibited superb brand of ball which has thrilled fans from New York's Madison Square Garden to the New Orleans' Sugar Bowl auditorium.

Hampden-Sydney lost its third straight contest to the strong Virginia Tech Gobblers, current "Big Six" Champions, 71-49. The Tigers' early lead was soon overcome by the Techmen and at the half were behind 25-32. The Bengals were never in the game in the second half and V.P.I., led by Jack Shockley, went on to win easily. Bill Balas bucketed 22 points to lead the Tigers in scoring for the night. Bounding back into the win column the Bengals tasted sweet revenge with 61-54 overtime victory over the University of Richmond. The packed gymnasium was quiet as a tomb when Art Haines broke a 50-50 tie with a push shot. There were only 14 seconds left when the Tigers took the ball outside. The Spiders were guarding very closely but George Bales threw up a desperation shot from mid-court which cut the cords with three seconds remaining. Time ran out before Richmond got a chance to shoot. The overtime period was all Hampden-Sydney as they played cat and mouse with the Spiders by stealing the ball and dribbling in for easy lay-ups on numerous occasions. The Tigers remained in their winning ways long enough to top Bridgewater again but two days later ran into defeat again at the hands of the State champion, Roanoke Maroons.

Lynchburg College and the Medical College were the next victims of the Red and Gray by scores of 60-24 and 62-43 respectively. The Tigers then took off into Maryland to take on two Mason-Dixon Conference foes and absorbed two defeats from Towson State Teachers College and Western Maryland. Both games were very close and might well have been won by either team. The Towson affair was somewhat of a farce due to the fact that six Tigers fouled out of the game. The score was tied at the end of the game, and Hampden-Sydney finished the overtime period with only three men on the court. Towson came out on top by a 69-57 score, but Bill Balas stole the show by scoring 27 points. The Western Maryland game was equally close with the northern lads finally winning 54-52. Balas again paced the Tigers with 16 points. The Tigers returned to the home court to topple Gallaudet by a 78-42 score. Twelve men saw action for Coach Proctor.

The next game was a real treat to the local fans even though the Red and Gray lost on a last second field goal. V.P.I. was the winner in a beautifully played game which saw clever ball-handling and accurate shooting by both sides. The final score was 57-55 as Balas collected 20 points. Two days later the Tigers were nosed out in another heartbreaker by Randolph-Macon, 48-47. The season was closed with an overwhelming victory over the Newport News Apprentice School.

Although the Tigers laid claim to no titles, the season was very successful considering opposition encountered. The Red and Gray was represented in the annual Mason-Dixon Conference tournament in Baltimore.

Baseball 1947

Hampden-Sydney' 1947 baseball team came through the season with a record of 10 wins against 9 defeats. Under the guidance of Coach Morgan Tiller, the Tigers from Death Valley faced tough opposition throughout the entire schedule, and emerged with a better than .500 won-lost record.

After bad weather conditions had held them indoors for several weeks, the Bengals officially opened the 1947 season by facing a strong Medical College of Virginia nine at Death Valley. Coming from behind after a shaky start, the Tigers tied the game at 16 all with 5 runs in the 9th. The game was then called because of darkness, but was played off at a latter date. The Garnet and Gray managed to push across a single run in the extra inning to win 17-16.

In their first start against little six competition, the Tigers lost a hearbreaker to Lynchburg College 11-7. Captain Walt Tunstall was on the mound for Hampden-Sydney and held the Hornets in check until the eighth, at which time the Tigers failed to give him the necessary support.

Hampden-Sydney bounced back into the win column by trouncing Bridgewater College 16-0. With Jack Glascock pitching a neat three hitter, the Tigers had little trouble walking off with a victory. "Father" allowed only one hit in the first eight frames to notch his first win of the season. R. C. Paxton collected five hits in six trips to the plate to lead the Tigers at bat.

A homer with one on in the tenth inning caused Coach Tiller's nine to drop a thriller to William and Mary 5-4. Tunstall was on the mound all the way and seemed to be in for his first triumph of the season when the Tigers pushed over a single run in their half of the tenth. However, Brennen, the Indians' third baseman, ruined Tuny's four-hitter by coming through with a circuit clout with one on base.

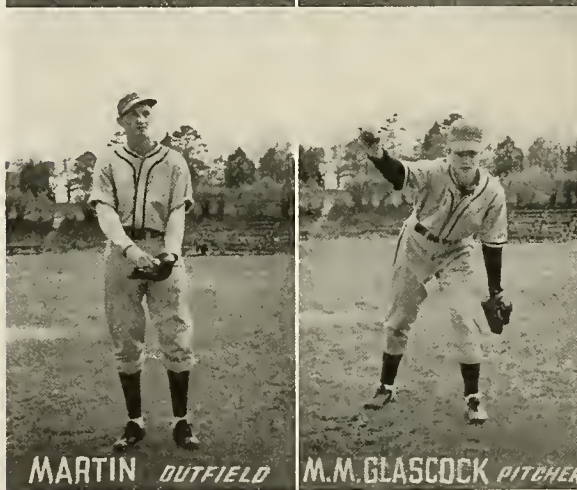

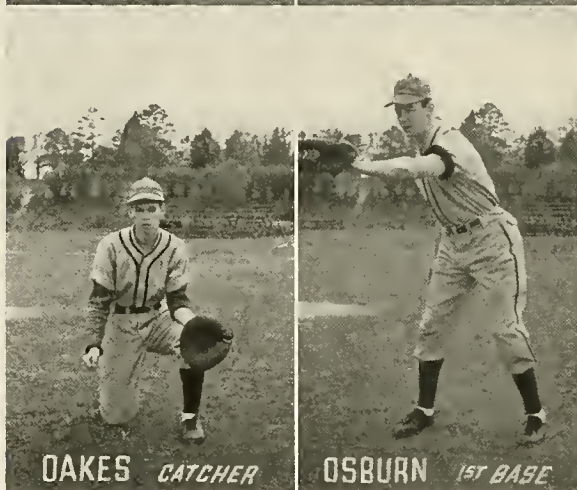

Hampden-Sydney took to the road and dropped a single game to the Norfolk Naval Training Station 10-3.

With Larry Silbernagle pitching a five-hitter and Paxton collecting four hits in five bats, the Bengals spanked Camp Lee 8-3.

Led at bat by Roy Martin, who had a perfect day with four hits for as many times at bat, including a homer, the Tigers beat the Medicos 8-3. Tunstall pitched for the Bengals.

Errors proved costly for the Garnet and Gray in dropping a close 7-6 decision to Lynchburg College. Silbernagle and Tunstall were on the mound for the Tigers.

Traveling to Bridgewater, the Tigers were greeted with an upset. The Eagles found new blood and set the Bengals down 12-7.

Back at Death Valley, the Tigers gained sweet revenge for a previous loss by dropping the William and Mary Indians 4-3 in the tenth. Silbernagle started on the mound for Hampden-Sydney but was relieved by Dameron in the tenth. Dameron scored the winning run after opening the tenth with a double.

The Tigers traveled to the University of Virginia and were far outclassed in losing 10-4.

Coming from behind with five runs in the eighth, the Tigers won over their arch rivals, Randolph-Macon, 9-8. "Tip-py" Morgan's homer was the deciding blow. Tunstall was on the mound for the Bengals.

Hampden-Sydney dropped the next two games to the University of Richmond 4-0 and 12-5.

After spotting Roanoke two runs in the first inning, the Tigers came from behind to win 3-2. Tunstall twirled a two-hitter and struck out six to receive credit for the win.

Outclassed all the way, the Tigers lost the next game to V.P.I. 7-2. Silbernagle and "Buddy" Glascock pitched for the losers.

Led at the bat by Paxton and J. Glascock, the Tigers came through to win their second game over Roanoke College 5-2. Silbernagle went the route for the Bengals and was effective all the way.

With five runs in the seventh, Hampden-Sydney made a clean sweep of the season with Randolph-Macon by beating the Jackets 6-5. Paxton, Martin, and Oakes were the big guns of the day. Jack Glascock and Walt Tunstall pitched for the Tigers.

The Tigers closed the season by losing to Virginia 15-3. Silbernagle, Tunstall, and Buddy Glascock were on the mound for Hampden-Sydney.

COACH A. T. HOWARD

When the call to the cinders was issued, prospects were a little uncertain, to say the least. But Coach A. T. Howard, using a bit of persuasion, managed to scrape up a well-balanced team which improved tremendously with each meet. It was a big disappointment to the student body, the team, and especially to Coach Howard when several scheduled meets had to be called off, as it was the general feeling that the team was just beginning to show what it could do. The third and final meet saw improving shifts in the lineup still being made, and the heights, distance and times were improving by leaps and bounds.

The Tiger Thinclads lost their opening meet with the Southern Conference, University of Richmond by a score of 76½-49½. Inexperience and lack of preparation were evident as the Tigers took only four first places and tied for another. Lynn Chewning, who took first place in the 100-yard and 220 yard dashes for a total of ten points, was high scorer for Hampden-Sydney, followed closely by George Bales with 9 points. The distinctive feature of the event was the fact that it took place in the pouring rain.

As fate would have it, the Hampden-Sydney trackmen won the next meet by the exact score by which they lost to Richmond, $76\frac{1}{2}$ - $49\frac{1}{2}$. Bales took top scoring honors with 19 points which he garnered by virtue of firsts in the broad jump, javelin, and discus, and a tie with Taylor for first in the high jump. Irvine took first in the mile and two-mile events, and Chewning again took the hundred and two-twenty.

The finale was with Randolph-Macon and the Jackets seemed to have the situation well in hand with only the broad jump and low hurdles remaining. Randolph-Macon's Gathright broke the R-M record by jumping over 21 feet, but Bales kept his record an unblemished one by springing 22 feet 5 inches. Chapman placed first in the hurdles and the Tigers won by the close margin of $63\frac{1}{2}$ - $62\frac{1}{2}$. Other firsts were taken by Chewning, Irvine, and Bray and Spratley (tie).

At the close of the season the Tigers took advantage of newly-acquired membership to the Mason-Dixon Conference by sending Chewning, Chapman, and Bray to the annual Conference Meet held at the University of Delaware. Chewning placed first and Chapman fourth in the 100-yard dash, the only event they entered.

Golf

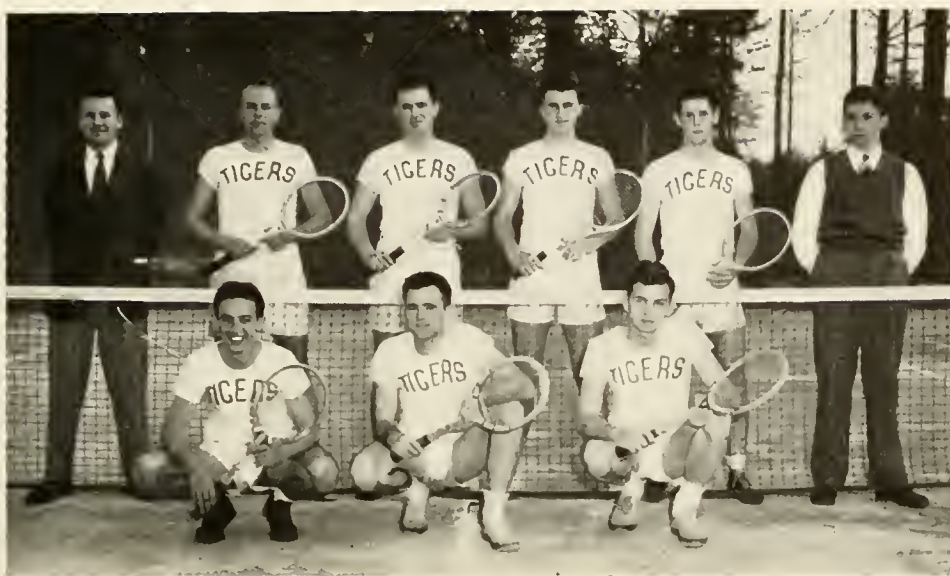

CAPTAIN VEST
COACH GHIGO

After several years of inactivity, the golf team was again organized on the campus during the Spring of 1947, and once again participated in state golf competition. Although the record of the '47 team was not very impressive, the Tiger six did manage to take several individual victories; however, the team as a whole never held the upper hand in any of its matches.

The 1947 group, which was coached by Dr. Ghigo and managed by Bill Rixey, had as its captain, Jimmy Vest. Jimmy who occupied the number one spot on the team was a fine golfer and often his card could be read in the middle 70's. Les Pugh, the only senior, held the number two spot, while Jesse Thompson, Wyllys Taylor, John Howard, and Sam May made up the remainder of the squad. Such teams as University of Virginia, Washington and Lee, V. P. I., V. M. I., and Apprentice School made the schedule one that presented the best in intercollegiate golf in the state of Virginia.

Thompson, Pugh, Howard, Vest, Taylor, May

The Tiger tennis team, boasting a record of nine wins against two setbacks, enjoyed a most successful season last spring under the tutorship of Coach Joe Nelson.

With a clean slate against the smaller schools of the state to their credit, the Death Valley netmen coasted to the Little Six championship title. Lynchburg and Bridgewater each bowed twice to the Tigers and only a misunderstanding in the schedule saved Randolph-Macon Jackets from the same fate. Against the larger colleges, the Tigers romped on V. M. I. twice, split with U. of Richmond, and succumbed to Washington and Lee. Victories over R. P. I. and Medical College, and an exhibition match against Byrd Park of Richmond, completed the banner season for the racqueteers.

Although Captain Levi Old and Pres Watt have been lost by graduation, as well as John McGavack and Bill Jones by transfer, the prospects for the coming season are nevertheless very bright. Returning to form the nucleus of the 1948 aggregation are: Jimmy Trinkle, Mickey Trenner, Dan West, and Frank Flora—all of whom had considerable experience last year.

Jay-Vee Basketball

Under the guidance of Coach Henry McCone, the Hampden-Sydney Junior Varsity basketball team experienced one of its most impressive seasons. With such fine display of young talent, Coach McCone had much trouble in choosing a "first team." Throughout the entire season the spectators that witnessed the J. V. tilts saw good, clean, hard-fought basketball. Coach McCone set as his whole purpose the training of these inexperienced players into better basketball players. Consequently, a large squad was carried throughout the season and all of these participants saw much action.

The Baby Tigers opened the season with two impressive victories over the Lynchburg College JV's and Woodberry Forest. However, the Cubs dropped a thriller to Glass High School of Lynchburg, 35-33, at Death Valley.

Successive wins were registered over the Randolph-Macon Jayvees and Fork Union before a loss to Woodberry followed.

The Baby Bengals managed to get by V. E. S. and Lynchburg College again, but still couldn't conquer Glass High. This time they went down before the attack of the Hilltoppers, 40-36.

V. E. S. offered little trouble once again to the Tigerettes as they rang up a lop-sided score of 48-24.

The University of Richmond "B" team invaded Death Valley and put up a good scrap before falling before the Cubs, 51-49. A foul shot by Larus and a field goal by Sharp in the last minute of play iced the game away from Hampden-Sydney.

The Galluadet Junior Varsity and Danville High School next felt the sting of the Baby Tigers attack. However, the Cubs were unable to get by the Randolph-Macon "B's" and lost 56-50.

With a record of 11 wins against 4 defeats, the Baby Tigers closed their best season in many years. Much credit should go to Coach McCone but also a great deal of praise belongs to the boys on the team who devoted their time and effort. Many of these players will see action on future Varsity teams due to the experience gained during this past season.

Jay-Vee Baseball

The first J. V. game was with Fork Union. Marvin Bowling started on the mound, being followed by Charlie Parran and later by Bruce Hughes. Under the big bats of the Academy, the Cubs were routed 15-3.

The next game was with Farmville High. Marvin Bowling again started on the mound and went the entire game. Getting off to a bad start the J. V.'s saw Farmville take an early lead which was not overcome although a rally was staged in the 8th inning. Farmville won 13-11.

The next week Manassas Industrial school journeyed to Death Valley and were turned back by the stellar pitching of Boo Sharp as the team took its first game 10-2.

Then a night game was played with Farmville High with Percy Burton doing some very successful twirling backed by good hitting by his teammates. Later Burton was relieved by Randy Harrison. The team won this one 14-11.

The last game was a return match with Manassas Industrial School at Manassas. Charlie Parran pitched a fine game in spite of a hard wind. The Cubs lost the game in the ninth inning as a Manassas man stole home on a passed ball to score the tie breaking run. Manassas 10-H.S.'s J. V. 9.

First Row: Morgan, Reeves, Hughes, Bowling, Davis, Parran, Jerene.
